The Texas Criminal Justice Coalition seeks the implementation of realistic criminal justice strategies that safely reduce the State's costly over-reliance on incarceration – creating stronger families, less taxpayer waste, and safer communities.

Below, we have provided comprehensive information about Dallas County's adult population at various stages of criminal justice system involvement. We have also provided the associated costs at each stage to highlight the significant expense to incarcerate or supervise these populations.

Total County Population

- Dallas County Population:¹ 2,553,385

STAGE 1: Pretrial Jail Detention

Of all the people incarcerated in Texas' county jails, more than half (on average) have not been convicted of the crime for which they are accused. They are in pretrial detention, awaiting trial.² Many men and women cannot afford the bond that would allow them to return to the community prior to trial; others are not given that option by judges, despite presenting little flight risk or posing no danger to public safety. This leads to unnecessary and costly jail overcrowding.

STAGE 2: Court-Appointed Counsel

Any indigent individual in Texas charged with a Class B misdemeanor or higher is entitled to court-appointed representation. However, counties pay for 81% of indigent defense costs, statewide. The state pays only 19%.⁶ As such, counties with already strained budgets may struggle to provide legal representation for all defendants who request an attorney.

STAGE 3 – Option A

Diversion from Incarceration to Community-Based Supervision (Probation)

Judges have the option of sentencing certain individuals to probation instead of prison or jail. Not only is probation over 30 times cheaper than prison or jail,¹¹ it is more effective than incarceration at lowering rates of re-offending, especially when paired with rehabilitative programming.¹² As such, investments in probation help boost public safety in the long term and reduce the likelihood of victims.

- Number of Individuals in Dallas County on Community Supervision (Probation):¹³ 26,890
 - » Number of Individuals on Misdemeanor Probation: 6,928

STAGE 3 – Option B

Incarceration in County Jail, State Jail, Prison, or a Designated Treatment Facility

Texas has various types of correctional facilities to house individuals with misdemeanor or felony convictions. Our 246 county jails house individuals with both misdemeanor and felony offenses (including state jail felonies and felonies of various degrees); they also temporarily house parole violators and individuals awaiting transfer to another type of correctional facility.¹⁵ Texas' 20 state jails¹⁶ house individuals with offenses of various levels.¹⁷ Our 57 prisons¹⁸ house individuals with felony or capital offenses. Our 5 Substance Abuse Felony Punishment Facilities (SAFPFs)¹⁹ house individuals with felony offenses who have been placed in this structured treatment regimen.²⁰

Upon leaving state jail, most individuals are left unsupervised. Upon leaving prison, however, individuals are either supervised on parole, supervised on community supervision (e.g., shock probation), or released on “flat discharge” (unsupervised).

³⁵ Individuals could return to prison after being revoked while on parole, Discretionary Mandatory Supervision (DMS), or Mandatory Supervision (MS).

DMS: In 1995, the Texas Legislature gave the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles (BPP) the authority to review eligible individuals whose offenses were committed on or after September 1, 1996, for possible release to Discretionary Mandatory Supervision. The BPP must review eligible prisoners on or before their discretionary mandatory eligibility date, and it has the discretion to deny release.

MS: This is a type of release from prison provided by law for restricted categories of returning individuals. Eligible individuals are released on MS when their served calendar time plus their good time credit equals the length of their prison sentence. Under previous law (effective until August 31, 1996), release to MS was automatic, with no requirement for release approval from the BPP.
